

Contacting IIOA

The day-to-day business of IIOA is conducted by the IIOA staff, working in concert with IIOA Boards and committees to plan association conferences and exhibits; develop educational courses, write and edit the IIOA Journal, the industrial operator's technical journal and maintain the IIOA web site.

IIOA headquarters is located in the heart of Indiana.

Member Benefits

IIOA Journal

Year after year, members name IIOA Journal – the organization's technical journal as the number-one benefit of belonging to IIOA! There's something for everyone: timely features, informative columns, technical articles, industry news and updates. The IIOA Journal is the source members can turn to, for industrial wastewater treatment related information.

Community Outreach

Members can participate in various outreach efforts including Earth Day Indiana and 3rd Grade Water Art Contests.

Member Discounts

Members pay lower admission fees to IIOA workshops and conferences. Usually the savings on any conference fee returns the dues amount.

Job Search Assistance

Members may place a "Situation Wanted" ad in the IIOA Journal free-of-charge. These discreet ads allow you to advertise your skills to those most likely to appreciate and need them, without disclosing your identity until you're ready. Also, employers frequently contact the IIOA office when they have a position to fill. These positions are advertised in the IIOA Journal as a service to our members.

Networking & Recognition

Whether at local meetings, workshops or WITtec™ Annual Conference, members can meet fellow wastewater professionals who are eager to share information and give guidance. Through optional committee participation, members can meet industry leaders, while helping steer the Association toward fulfilling its stated mission.

The IIOA Awards Program acknowledges the achievements and contributions of wastewater professionals. Awards are given annually for leadership, environmental stewardship, and contribution to the Association, operations and individual excellence.

Honorary memberships may be bestowed on individuals whose contributions are extraordinary.

Education & Certification

Organized as a technical educational society, IIOA has established a curriculum of wastewater related workshops to increase member knowledge and skill levels. These courses are offered through out the year at off-site facilities, as in-plant seminars, or Annual Conference events. Members register for IIOA activities at discounted fees.

Courses include:

Back to Basics Workshop

Exam Review – An Exam Preparatory Review Course for the State Wastewater Licensing Exam

RIWP Review – A Preparatory Review Course for the Registered Industrial Wastewater Professional credential.

RPC Course—A Preparatory Review Course for the Registered Pretreatment Coordinators credential.

Industry Conferences

WITtec™

Quite simply the most important industrial wastewater conference in Indiana, held each year, offers numerous technical concurrent sessions, an exhibit of equipment, and service industry leaders, training courses, certification and registration exams, committee meetings, awards ceremonies, annual elections, and the opportunity to network with wastewater professionals and regulators from all over the State.

Continuing Education

Periodically workshops, seminars and plant tours are held throughout the state to provide operators with an opportunity to earn continuing education credits for license renewal and skills necessary for the advancement of licenses.

RIWP and RPC Credentials

The Registered Industrial Wastewater Professional and Registered Pretreatment Coordinator credentials are offered upon the successful completion of examination and experience process.

The IIOA Mission

The Indiana Industrial Operators Association, Inc. (IIOA), is an individual-membership, non-profit professional society, dedicated to your advancement in the profession of wastewater treatment.

IIOA fosters this advancement through comprehensive educational programs that benefit everyone involved in this widely diversified industry, along with efforts to educate the community in its outreach programs. Founded in 1995, IIOA is regarded and respected as the foremost organization of its kind.

Mission – The primary mission of IIOA is to serve professionals in wastewater treatment, to benefit industry and society through education, information and social involvement. This mission has the strong support and representation of the industry in both government and private sectors. Membership is open to all wastewater professionals and those who provide services, supplies, equipment and support to the industry.
